This month we focus on a series of animations developed to support the social and emotional wellbeing of Aboriginal children.

Animations developed to support the social and emotional wellbeing of Aboriginal children

A series of animations that focus on holistic health and storytelling have been created to speak directly to an Aboriginal audience. These animations also aim to help health and community professionals gain a better understanding of what social and emotional wellbeing can mean to Aboriginal people. Read more

Creating the animations through consultation and collaboration

The KidsMatter Aboriginal animations were developed using a collaborative framework that involved working with a team of experienced Aboriginal consultants. Read more

Understanding Aboriginal concepts of health

Did you know that “Aboriginal health” means not just the physical wellbeing of an individual but refers to the social, emotional and cultural wellbeing of the whole? For non-Indigenous health professionals and services it is important to understand the history and context of Aboriginal health. Read more

How to use the KidsMatter Aboriginal animations in your work

Here are some important tips on how to use these animations and resources in a culturally safe way. Read more

Second Australian Child and Adolescent survey of Mental Health and Well-Being

Webinar: Supporting the social and emotional wellbeing of Aboriginal children

Reconciliation Australia – Reconciliation Action Plan Hub

Webinar: Supporting children of parents with a mental illness, in schools and early childhood services