Thinking about cultural diversity

Australia is one of the most culturally diverse countries in the world. In this edition, we look at why cultural identity matters to a child's mental health and wellbeing, and also ways to build intercultural responsiveness.

Why cultural identity matters to children's wellbeing

Children with a strong cultural identity develop a sense of belonging and self-esteem. Read more

Three ways to build intercultural responsiveness

Building intercultural responsiveness can take time, but there are a number of steps you can take to begin the journey. Read more

Building positive and collaborative relationships with families

Positive, collaborative relationships with children's families are the foundation of being interculturally-responsive. Read more
Understanding the challenges facing children from culturally diverse backgrounds

In order to support the needs of children from diverse backgrounds, it is critical to understand the particular challenges they face. Read more

Mental Health in Multicultural Australia
Services and support for professionals working with CALD children and families
Centre for Multicultural Youth resources

NCAB Conference 2016: Towards bullying solutions: theory & practice

Having trouble seeing the images? Try this version
You have received this email because you subscribe to the KidsMatter eNewsletter. Unsubscribe

Australian Psychological Society, Level 11, 257 Collins Street, Melbourne VIC 3000.
© Commonwealth of Australia 2012. This work is copyright. You may use this work in accordance with the terms of licence available at www.kidsmatter.edu.au